

Brockschmidt Photography

A Tradition of Memories A Touch of History

Tucked away in a little spot on Park Avenue just south of Washington Park is Springfield's best kept secret:

Wedding artist William Brockschmidt

Bill's approach is simple. There are four basic principles for life: Faith, Family, Friends, and Future. By capturing, enhancing, and preserving these elements of your most special of days, your past becomes a part of your future. This existential touch is what sets Bill apart from most photographers. His forty years experience with wedding photography enables him to capture the images you want today as well as the images you will want 20 or 30 years from now. At the same time his enthusiasm for his job gives him the energy of someone just beginning wedding photography. The images from your wedding will be a treasure to you, your parents and future generations. This is a profound responsibility. In addition to his craft, skill and professionalism, he will charm grandmothers, infatuate little children and earn the respect of your attendants, parents and friends. A life-long resident of Springfield, except for five years at Valpariaso University, Bill photographed his first wedding in 1969. He began his career as a full time professional photographer in 1974. Bill was the first photographer in the Midwest to offer reception slide shows of the day's events. This innovation has become the talk of the wedding industry nationwide.

If you don't have a wedding photographer - you need to meet Bill.
